PROJECTS

Groovium (Express, Pug, PostgreSQL)   Live Site | Github
A Medium clone which allows users to write stories about specific topics.
- Used Javascript to implement a custom carousel on the splash page
- Used Pug to create layouts for users to interact with
- Used PostgreSQL for backend to allow users to store information

- //Am I using 'used' too much? Switch up verbs?

Cleanstagram (React, Redux, Flask, Docker, PostgreSQL, AWS)   Live Site | Github
An Instagram clone which allows users to post and comment on images.
- Used React and Redux to allow users to create/edit/delete a comment dynamically via state
- Used AWS to allow users to upload images to be stored on the cloud
- Used Redux state to allow users to follow and have followers
- Used Redux to simplify React components and manage form input data and submission

- Utilized AWS S3 to implement user image uploads to the cloud // reword?
- Implemented custom search using redux

Peter'sPlace (React, Redux, Flask, Docker, PostgreSQL, Flask-SocketIO)   Live Site | Github
A simple websocket chat app.
- Used Flask-SocketIO and Socket.IO client to allow users to access separate chat rooms dynamically
- Used CSS to create a better UX experience
- Used Docker to create and deploy a container to Heroku

- Harnessed unidirectional state management of Redux to manage and validate form input and submissions
- Harnessed bidirection data flow using Flask-SocketIO and Socket.IO client to allow users to chat in real time // does this read better?
